

Labelling & Marking

- Accurate labelling and marking is an essential part of shipping. Specific labels and marks convey important information to warehouse and aircraft loading teams on how a shipment should be stored and handled.
- Some labels, such as the orientation (This Way Up) label are of a general nature and could be applied to any package required to be kept upright.
- Other commodities require the application of specific labels which will be shown in the respective sections.
- Our warehouses can assist small shippers who do not have access to the array of shipping and handling labels with the correct labelling of their packages.

Shippers should not apply unnecessary or superfluous labels. Only apply the labels you need in accordance with the applicable regulations or if your shipment requires specific handling.
